Quantitative structure-activity relationship models (QSAR models) are regression or classification models used in the chemical and biological sciences and engineering. Like other regression models, QSAR regression models relate a set of "predictor" variables (X) to the potency of the response variable (Y), while classification QSAR models relate the predictor variables to a categorical value ...

Laser-induced breakdown spectroscopy (LIBS) is a type of atomic emission spectroscopy which uses a highly energetic laser pulse as the excitation source. The laser is focused to form a plasma, which atomizes and excites samples. The formation of the plasma only begins when the focused laser achieves a certain threshold for optical breakdown, which generally depends on the environment and the ...

ABSTRACT. Polymorphism in solids is a common phenomenon in drugs, which can lead to compromised quality due to changes in their physicochemical properties, particularly solubility, and, therefore, reduce bioavailability.

Polymorphism: an evaluation of the potential risk to the

Abstract of a paper presented at the 1989 International Conference on Pharmaceutical Sciences, Prague, 1989. The paper discusses the potential risk to the quality of pharmaceutical products due to polymorphism in solids. It reviews the physicochemical properties of polymorphs and their impact on solubility and bioavailability. The paper also discusses the methods used to identify and characterize polymorphs and the potential for polymorphic transitions during the manufacturing and storage of pharmaceutical products. The paper concludes that polymorphism is a significant quality attribute that must be considered in the development and manufacturing of pharmaceutical products.
