The review progresses, aligned with the model, from the inside out. Firstly, design issues are considered within this industry, which relate to automation; secondly, personnel issues, such as fatigue, stress and non-technical skills are presented, followed by organizational level issues such as safety climate and training.

The strength of ships is a topic of key interest to naval architects and shipbuilders. Ships which are built too strong are heavy, slow, and cost extra money to build and operate since they weigh more, whilst ships which are built too weakly suffer from minor hull damage and in some extreme cases catastrophic failure and sinking.

Hazard Consequences Cause Avoidance and prevention Oxygen partial pressure in the breathing gas is too low to sustain normal activity or consciousness.: Hypoxia: Reduced level of consciousness, seizures, coma, death. Severe hypoxia induces a blue discoloration of the skin, called cyanosis, but this may also be present in a diver due to peripheral vasoconstriction resulting from exposure to cold.

Quote HSE " Success in managing major Hazards is not measured by the Occupational Health and Safety Statistics but by measuring the performance of critical systems used to control risks to ensure they are operating as intended.. This statement is a very powerful statement and i want to stand on the premise that it should form the basis of assessing and formulating regulation regimes.
